

Winter Fiesta Soon Carnival Reveals Varied Program

The twelfth annual Winter Carnival, the product of an effort started last fall, will extend over a wide range of activities in its three day duration.

One of the more publicized events is the choosing of the Carnival Queen. Nominations are being accepted at present, but must be in by Friday, Feb. 6.

The Queens' Tea will be held at 3 pm Monday, Feb. 9 in RVC. Five princesses will be selected by a board of judges which includes Red O'Quinn, Montreal football hero.

Another aspect of the Carnival is a beard-growing contest which has attracted a considerable segment of the male student population. Judging will be Tuesday, Feb. 17.

Seventy Universities In Students United Nations

Opening Speech Given Tonight By Secretary of State Smith

The first University Model United Nations ever held in Canada will be opened this afternoon by President Rene Pouliot. Delegates from 70 universities are scheduled to participate.

The initial session will take place in the main auditorium of the University of Montreal at 3:45 pm. The official opening speech will be given at 7:30 this evening by Hon. Sidney E. Smith.

BERLIN QUESTION

The subject under discussion this afternoon will be a resolution to be submitted by Argentina on the Berlin question. The delegates will be introducing the official views of the nations they represent. To insure the correctness of each presentation, the participants have been studying United Nations reports for the past several months. Various embassies in Ottawa and the United Nations missions in New York have also sent advisors to the students for this purpose.

SIMULTANEOUS TRANSLATION

An added touch to keep the sessions on a par with the real United Nations will be a simultaneous translation system organized with the assistance of the United Nations School of Languages in New York and the simultaneous translation school at the University of Montreal.

For the first time the Secretary General, Mr. Dag Hammarskjöld, has decided to break precedent and give his full support to a Model United Nations. Mr. Hammarskjöld has sent one of his top advisors, Mr. George Ivan-Smith, director of the External Relations Division at the UN.

Sessions of the Security Council and the General Assembly will continue until Saturday at the University of Montreal.

The Secretary General will be David Franklin, a third year law student at McGill University while the Chairman of the entire event is Zafar Khan, second year commerce student.

GLOBAL CONGRATULATIONS

The headquarters of the Model United Nations have reported that messages of congratulations and good wishes are flowing in at a steady pace from around the globe. Dr. Charles Malik, Foreign Minister of Lebanon and President of the Thirteenth General Assembly, stated in his despatch, "A Model United Nations must above all realize something of the special international flavour of stubborn tension and clash attendant upon serious discussion of questions of governments. I beg you to aim at profound knowledge of issues and to debate them vigorously, seriously, boldly and with utter responsibility".

Invasion Takes Place

by DAVE MAYEROVITCH

A troupe of irreverent Red and White Revuers bounced into the sacred precincts of Mayor Sarto Fournier's office yesterday morning, leaving in their wake a litter of cigarette butts and a number of half-empty bottles.

The well-dressed McGill thespians, radiating Sartorial splendour, entered City Hall, where they were greeted by C. Hugh Hanson, McGill's representative on the City Council. He acted in the absence of the Mayor, who was in Quebec City yesterday.

Mr. Hanson welcomed the visitors, asked them if "Reign or Shine" would be as good as "My Fur Lady", received assurances from producer Jon Anderson that it would, and posed with the cast for press photographers.

SIGN GOLDEN BOOK

Parrying questions on a subway for Montreal, he then ushered the McGills into the Mayor's private office, where they signed the city's Golden Book, reserved for illustrious visiting dignitaries. An unidentified female on the Revue's production staff made history by signing herself as "Call Girl". Representatives of the Vice Squad were not present.

The Revuers were treated to a half-hour of soft music and hard liquor at the expense of the taxpayers — a customary privilege accorded guests of the civic administration.

Escorted by a constable to the Council Chamber, they heard a short lecture on city government, posed for more pictures, and left.

The Revue opens in Moyse Hall tomorrow night.

This Morning's Headlines News of National and World Significance

OTTAWA, Feb. 3 — The government may be asked to initiate an investigation by the Commons public accounts committee into "slipshod construction" and workmanship on piers, locks and bridge abutments along the St. Lawrence Seaway.

QUEBEC, Feb. 3 — Premier Duplessis indicated the provincial government will take steps at the current session of the Legislative Assembly to provide safety measures for natural gas consumers in the province.

BERLIN, Feb. 3 — The Soviet Army today ignored three strong protests, and for the second day thwarted the passage of an American military truck convoy headed from isolated Berlin to West Germany.

Model United Nations

The University Model United Nations, which opens today at the University of Montreal, is one of the most ambitious programmes of its kind ever undertaken by local students. There will be approximately three hundred persons involved in the proceedings including a large number of guests from various American and Canadian universities.

The list of speakers and panel members is an impressive one. It includes some of Canada's leading political figures — Sidney Smith, Donald Fleming, Paul Martin and Lester Pearson, whose name has always been associated with the work of the United Nations. These men, as well as a number of professors from our own faculty and members of the diplomatic corps in Ottawa and at the UN, will discuss vital issues in the world today. German reunification, the Middle East and the development of Asia are among the subjects to be examined.

It is difficult to assess the value of events such as Model United Nations or the McGill Conference on World Affairs. One fact, however, can be asserted with certainty and that is that unless the student body at large takes advantage of this opportunity to hear some of the speakers and attend the panel discussions, the value of the event to the University is negligible.

Dr. James, in a message to the participants, pointed out some of the long range advantages of such programmes.

"To win peace," the Principal stated, "we need more than the weapons of massive retaliation. We need to understand the minds of those with whom we disagree; we must appreciate their language, their history, their habits and their motives. Each of us knows that the arts of conciliation and compromise are difficult, even when the disputants live in the same street, and work for the same company. Like Socrates, we must deeply realize that the understanding of men's minds is the only avenue that leads to truth."

But surely there are more immediate benefits to be gained by all of us from this programme. We are being given the opportunity to listen to some of the leaders of our country and to discuss problems which involve us all. This is an opportunity for which we should be thankful and of which we should take full advantage.

Tangled In Red Tape

"Guilt by Association" is apparently still in vogue with American immigration authorities. In a remarkable incident in Toronto the other day a Canadian Citizen was refused entry to the U.S.—because he is the son of his father.

The facts are these: Lou Smrke, a 31 year old Canadian Citizen, born in Belgrade, but brought up in Canada, was not permitted to pass through the U.S. with fellow members of the Canadian entry to the world hockey championships. The team was en route for Europe and planned a 90 minute stopover in New York while changing planes. The immigration officials refused to tell Smrke the reason for their refusal. So Smrke boarded a T.C.A. plane which went directly to Scotland, not passing through the States.

The Toronto press naturally objected vehemently to the actions of the American officials. They discovered that Smrke's father had been a member of a Communist front organization — something far less grave than being a Communist — before the war. Apparently R.C.M.P. officials had exchanged this information with their American counterparts. At no time has Smrke junior ever been even the least suspect by Canadian authorities.

Once this news was out, the American immigration officials denied that Smrke's refusal had anything to do with his father's being a suspected Communist 20 years ago. They claim he was refused entry because he forgot to fill out a "form".

The incident is rapidly assuming international proportions and tempers will be strained on both sides of the border. This makes for a worsening in Canadian-American relations.

To prevent such a happening in the future we suggest our American friends remove such ridiculous "red tape" for Canadian Citizens who wish to pass through the U.S. in transit to other nations.

Meanwhile, a certain segment of the Canadian press will be yelling "witch hunt" and we don't blame them. The facts speak for themselves.

What Is WUSC?

WUS began thirty-seven years ago as an emergency war relief programme. To-day it represents a unique effort to work 'across and above all the differences and conflicts that divide men and nations'. What is Canada's stake in this venture? What are its accomplishments?

Since its inception thirty-seven years ago, World University Service has directed its efforts toward the development of inter-university contacts, collaboration and understanding. Formerly known as International Student Service, it was founded in 1920 out of the impulse of students and professors of the more favoured nations to extend mutual aid to their fellow-members in the war-torn countries of Europe. Appalled by the desperate plight of the university community in these countries, it mobilized resources and co-ordinated the efforts to aid European students and professors. Assistance rendered was neither careless charity nor prejudiced politics. Except where students or professors were physically unable to work, money was not given directly but used to start "self-help" enterprises. By 1925, the most urgent relief needs were met, but the desire to maintain contact and the need to work together to face other problems of universities remained. A permanent organization was therefore established and has continued to serve the university community through the years. The essential characteristics of World University Service are that it does not claim a specific membership but addresses itself to all members of the academic community. Secondly, it unites students and professors in carrying out its tasks. Equally important is its lack of political, religious or racial partisanship, so that within its framework it involves students and professors of many countries, owing allegiance to different religious, political, social creeds and concepts.

Meets All Needs

The programme of WUS attempts to meet the material and intellectual needs of universities and falls into three main categories: Mutual assistance, international education, and research.

Where textbooks are rare or expensive, WUS provides printing equipment; when illness and disease riddle a university, WUS builds health centres and provides drugs; where student housing is in short supply, WUS stimulates co-operative housing units; when isolation breeds mistrust, WUS provides the bonds of friendship. And in times of crisis, when the world of learning is stricken or terrorized, WUS becomes an agency for relief.

Circumstances of history give Canadians the opportunity and the duty to play a constructive role in world affairs. Canada is not suspected of imperialist motives. She inherits the highest traditions of freedom and justice, and Canadians are frequently called upon to undertake important and delicate tasks at the international level.

World University Community

The same is true of university affairs. And it is primarily through WUS that Canadian students and professors can play their part in the world university community. In doing so, they enhance Canada's good name abroad, and further mutual understanding across national, racial, and political barriers. The importance of WUS in the Canadian and international university scene was eloquently expressed by External Affairs Minister Sidney Smith in his report as WUS National President to the National Conference of Canadian Universities in June, 1957 in the following terms:

In the growth and development of WUS nearly every Canadian university, both English and French-speaking, has played a part. The increasing participation of students and professors is proof that the Canadian university community regards World University Service as its own agency for establishing contact with the university world, for meeting the material and human needs of other university men and women, and in the promotion of inter-university understanding and collaboration. Today WUS stands out as the most effective international university agency that is working across and above all the differences and conflicts that divide men and nations.

Since its inception the work of WUS has grown in scope and significance. A programme which began as emergency war relief has, in the faithful discharge of this function, become an important international effort to serve and enrich the university world. As a result, there is a deepened consciousness of the common lot of university men and women, as well as a growing sense of the more profound needs of the academic community.

WUS Faces Many Problems

Yet, WUS has not escaped the basic problems of our era. The ideological conflict casts its shadow over its work, its decisions, and the relationships between its members. In the Middle East, the tensions of that region make for slow and halting progress in the completion of WUS projects; the same is true of other areas where internal strife and unstable conditions prevail. The generosity of American students and professors, who raise about 70% of the international budget, sometimes confers an anti-communist label on WUS, whilst the desire of WUS, as a non-partisan and politically neutral agency, to establish contact with universities in Eastern Europe suggests pro-communist leanings to some minds. These two extreme points of view help, in a sense, to prove the impartiality of WUS. But although WUS must inevitably be a microcosm of the world in which we live, reflecting its hopes, fears and hatreds, it also offers, through a concrete and effective programme, the basis on which solutions may be found to this legacy of man divided against man. Thus WUS, as an instrument of university service, is respected and trusted by men of all races, faiths, political persuasions, and nations.

Asian Authority Causes Problem

South Molucca, an island in Indonesia, was invited as an expert on Asian politics.

An official of the model UN said Dr. Manusama was not to have spoken before the assembly, or the International Court of Justice, but merely to have been one of the five Asian experts scheduled to discuss the subject "Is the Parliamentary System Suitable for Asia?" next Friday.

The UMUN spokesman said that he was not invited as the representative of the South Moluccan republic, which is a dissident group within the Republic of Indonesia.

Danger of Fallout Still Not Definite and genetic damage to mankind is too great to delay the establishing of a plan to outlaw nuclear bomb tests. Such a plan would not exclude the production of nuclear bombs already tested but would focus attention on the testing of missiles to carry bombs to their targets.

The McGill team rejected the health threats posed by nuclear tests on the grounds that scientists were at variance as to the physiological effects of the fallout and that the danger had not been conclusively proved. The team argued that politically, a program for the banning of tests would be unwise as it would injure the West's position in the cold war. They also pointed out that such a plan could not be enforced even if agreed upon.

The McGill team was represented by Sam Gewurz and David Lewittes, while the Yeshiva debaters were Martin Gordon and Yasha Hirshant.

Crucial Tests For Redmen

McGill, U. of M. In Hockey Battle

For the first time this season, the McGill hockey Redmen will not be going into an intercollegiate contest as overwhelming underdogs, as they tangle with the University of Montreal Carabins this evening, 8 P.M. at the MWS. In fact, judging from their excellent comeback in last Friday's 5-3 loss to the same Carabins, the Redmen stand better than an even chance of finally breaking into the winning circle.

Although they didn't win, last week brought more satisfaction to Coach Ken Murray and the Redmen than a faceful of black whiskers brings to Fidel Castro. The big red team finally began to jell, and put together two powerful games against Queen's and the U. of M., losing by an eyelash in both.

The Redmen played well enough to take both of these contests. They caused the biggest shocker of the year by scoring after only 16 seconds of play against the Carabins, and had the Maplewood boys hanging on the ropes for a good part of the first two periods. This was a far cry from the 13-0 trouncing that the Redmen took from them in their first meeting before Christmas.

The improved team play by the Redmen has finally made life worth while for goaler Alex Herron. This may sound a little unreasonable, but for the first time in a long while, Alex was "only" called on to stop less than 40 pucks in both of last week's games. Comparatively speaking, the kid had a picnic as his shots-per-game average, which was previously up around 65, took a beating.

Spearheading the Redmen's emergence to prominence has been the great improvement in the play of the Joe Irvin-Ivan Saunders-Terry O'Connor line, the impressive return of rookie Bruce Hutchison after a long layoff due to a knee injury, and the fine defensive play of Terry Dingle, Mike Richards, Dave Laroche and Jimmy Grant.

Offensively, Joe Irvin broke out into a scoring spree last week picking up 3 goals and 4 assists in the two contests. He was by far the best man on the ice on Friday, and is hoping to repeat again tonight. Jim Grant produced his best efforts in the two contests while rookies Bruce Hutchison, Tim Peters and Steve Molson, shone brilliantly at times. Hutchison, in particular, looks most impressive, is a fine stickhandler, a good playmaker, and a fine two-way player.

Most important of all is the fact, that the Redmen are a well conditioned group of boys now. Physically speaking, they looked just plain tired in their first six contests. This plus experience is making the big difference in their improvement of late.

INTRAMURAL RIFLERY SHOOT

Intramural competition is coming to the end of its trail. Only fencing and riflery have not crowned their champs. Tomorrow, February 5 and the next two successive Thursdays McGill's sharpshooters will compete in the Intramural Rifle Tournament in the Rifle Range of the Currie gym. Entries must be composed of a team of three girls representing a faculty, fraternity or residence. Each individual must shoot two targets in the same night and the team with the highest average will be crowned intramural winners.

Presently Phys. Ed. leads all faculties with four crowns — in basketball, swimming, tennis and volleyball. The golf crown rests safely with the Arts girls, the hockey championship is shared by Arts-Nurses and the Bowling laurels with Science. Grad Nurses have won the badminton singles and Medicine the doubles.

MAC HOSTS SWIMMING

Mac will play host to McGill in an extramural swim meet this Friday evening in Ste Anne de Bellevue. Barbara Fay, Sherrill Rand, Leslie Ann Lewthwaite, Diane Matheson, Betty Zeisler, Jane Walker, Nancy Keare and Pauline McCullagh will compete in the speed races and relays while Marg Harris and Pauline McCullagh will put on a synchronized swimming exhibition. The meet will be part of Macdonald College's Winter Carnival festivities. Managing the two teams are Betty Zeisler of McGill and J. MacLean of Macdonald.

Next Monday our McGill hockeyettes will play host to Mac's formidable hockey squad at the Winter Stadium. The starting lineup for the Red and White is still a big secret as Coach Dave Copp is having a hard time selecting the top talent from a rich field of hockey femmes. A return match will be played later in February on Aggie home ice.

INTERCOLLEGIATE TOURNEYS SOON

McGill's top basketballers, volleyballers, squashtettes and badminton players are now grinding and gritting through the preparation period before the big intercollegiate meets. This Friday Lillian Paslawski, Mary Heron, Duffy Davey and Ann McNally will compete in the Intercollegiate Badminton Tournament at Queen's. The following weekend Coach Dorothy Helleur and team will vie for the volleyball championship in the tourney at Toronto. Probable representatives from McGill include Diane Matheson, Wendy Massiah, Clare Nesbitt, Mary Jane Sanderson, Judy Zeisler, Nadia Pavlychenko, Olga Warren and Margaret Robertson. The basketball teams will compete at the end of the month for the famous Bronze Baby at Western. In the meanwhile McGill's star basketballers are entered in the Women's Open Basketball League where they have fared very well up to date. The Reds are safely embedded in first place in the Senior League while the Juniors are not too far off the pace in the Junior "A" Division. Coach Dubrule has brought the teams along so well despite a freshette studded lineup in all squads.

RECREATIONAL SPORTS FOR EVERYONE

The swimming pool is opened for recreational swimming and the hours are posted on the RVC Notice Board. The squash courts are available during the entire week from 9 am-10 pm. Then there is archery every Tuesdays and Thursdays from 2-5 pm in the Rifle Range, and badminton every Tuesdays and Thursdays at 7:30 pm. Tommie Nugent has been elected President of the Volleyball Club; Marika Salamis President of the Basketball Club; Sherrill Rand President of Swimming and Gael Eakin Soccer President. In a recent ski meet at St. Donat Marion MacDougall and Gael Eakin placed second and third respectively. Nora Altimas placed first in a meet at Val David.

Junior Team Downed 65-41 By Settlement

by ED BIERBRIER

The McGill junior basketball team went down to their second straight defeat at the hands of the University Settlement as they bowed 65-41 last night at the Currie Gym.

The first half was even as both sides matched basket for basket. Ben Shore led the McGill squad while the Settlement was headed by Danny Kannath. Spencer Lanthier snared in several rebounds for the home team and set up many of the crew's baskets. During this half Coach McGregor's men used a zone defence while the Settlement played man to man. With cautious ball playing by both teams, University Settlement led at the half by only three points, 22-19.

However in the second half the Settlement began to break out and though McGill controlled the ball for the majority of the game they failed to capitalize on their shots and the Settlement were able to go into the fourth quarter with a twenty point lead. Standing out for the visitors was Danny Kannath who scored 23 points and was potting them from all over the floor. Top man once again for the McGill squad was Ben Shore who garnered in nineteen.

McGill played excellent ball considering that the visitors have scored almost four hundred points in their last 4 outings. McGill's trouble appeared to be that they were shooting much too often from far out rather than working their way in as did their visitors.

Cagers Vie For 2nd Spot In MBL

"The most important game of the year for us in Montreal Basketball League play". This is how Ron Sharpe, coach of the McGill Redmen basketball team, described tonight's game against Loyola at 5:30 pm at the Currie Gym.

The reason for this description lies in the MBL standings. The Redmen are presently tied with Loyola for third place, each with four points. McGill has a 2-4 won — lost record in this league, while the Warriors have won two out of four starts so far this season. If the Red and White should win this one they will go into a second place tie with the Davis YMHA Blues who have won three and lost two in five games. The remaining two squads in the loop are both in a class by themselves. The powerful Quebec Steelers are undefeated in six contests, and the University of Montreal Carabins are winless in five games.

The Warriors have already beaten the Redmen this year. But since that game the McGills have come a long way. They have been playing much better ball, a fact which is easily observed if one looks over their record of recent games.

Although there is not too much height on the Loyola team, they are a hard driving and fast breaking quintet. They also have a few good shooters on the outside that will probably cause the Redmen some trouble and anxiety. However, the McGill squad are favoured to take the game.

In their last outing, the Redmen were dumped to the tune of 73-53 by the Queen's Golden Gaels in a Senior Intercollegiate League tilt. However the Redmen did not exhibit the drive that sparked them to wins over the University of Toronto and the University of Montreal in their two previous games. Their big guns were almost completely silenced by the Gaels tight zone defence. Cal Cooper managed only five points while Gary Ulrich and John Moore also both put in poor showings point-wise.

BASKET-BITS: Tonight's game was originally scheduled for Friday at Loyola . . . John Finch, captain of the McGill team, will be counted on to put in his usual solid performance on offence and Bruce Stein to continue his fine rebounding efforts of the last few games . . . The Redmen have only two more home games this season . . . Saturday night they entertain Western, while the following week-end they are host to McMaster . . . Then they will take two road trips, one to Assumption and Western, then to Queen's where they will close out the season.

McGill Needs Gymnasts!

The program of gymnastics presently offered by the Athletics Department will shortly be given a complete overhaul. At the same time a reorganization of apparatus work will also take place.

The reason for the shuffling is simply that the gymnastics program has been lagging this year. It seems that although many students are interested in gymnastics, they were either not attracted by the present program or found it lacking. The Athletics Department feels that a complete overhaul of the program is necessary if gymnastics are to be revived.

Regardless of your present physical state, all students are eligible to take part in the new program, and to try out for the team. However only those who are keenly interested enough to attend practices will be accepted.

The annual Intercollegiate Gymnastics Meet against Varsity had to be cancelled this year by McGill because of an insufficient number of gymnasts. This meet could possibly be revived if more enthusiastic participants start practising.

The program to be offered will include work on the high bar, parallel bars, flying rings, side horse, tumbling, free calisthenics and vaulting. These exercises develop strength, general development, daring, form, co-ordination, timing and flexibility respectively. They tend to build up the body to the conditioning of a football player. All those that interested should report to the Currie gym on Wednesday, February 4 between 5:15 and 6:45.
